FOUR MEN ARE KILLED.

Frankfort the Seat of an Awful Tragedy, Tuesday.

Lieutenant Scott, Charles Julian and L. W. Dem-aree, All Prominent Men, Killed and Three Others Wounded--One Will Die.

AN OLD FEUD, NOT POLITICS.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 16.—Three men are dead, one fatally wounded and two more seriously injured as the result of the battle between ex-Congressman Colson and Lieut. Ethelbert Scott in the lobby of the Capital Hotel this afternoon.

The dead are Lieut. Ethelbert Scott of Somerset; Charles Julian, of Franklin county, and L. W. Demaree, of Shelbyville.

The wounded: Capt. Ben B. Goldson of Barbourville, shot in the back, on right side; Harry M'Ewan, of Louisville, shot in right leg; David G. Colson, shot through left arm.

ACCOUNT OF AN EYE WITNESS.

Mr. R. Lee Suter, of Louisville, was an eye-witness to the whole affair.

"I was standing inside the office railing talking to some ladies," said he, "when the shooting began. I rushed into the office proper, and saw Colson and Scott within a few feet of each other, each firing at the other.

"I saw two bystanders drop to the floor, and then saw Scott turn and flee down the steps into the basement of the hotel.

"Colson was ten feet behind him, with his pistol gripped with both hands.

"He fired at Scott and then pursued him down the steps.

"The fatal shot was fired down there I think.

"Colson returned to the hotel proper and disappeared back into the rear part of the hotel.

"The trouble, I think, was an old one, and had no connection with politics. No one else participated in the battle. The other persons shot were innocent bystanders.

HEGAN SHOOTING ALL OF A SUDDEN.

Colson surrendered to Officers
Thompson and Robinson and County Attorney Polsgrove.

The shooting was preceded by no loud talking and began without a moment's warning. There were probably 200 people in the hotel lobby at the time.

It seemed that the principals were trying to kill each other and avoid wounding anybody else.

REFUSES TO TALK.

Asked for a statement about the shooting, Col Colson said:

"I don't wish to make any statement now."

"Were Scott and yourself the only ones to do any shooting?"

"I must decline to answer any questions now."

Col. Colson was surrounded by friends from his home county.

SCOTT WAS BRADLEY'S NEPHEW.

Ethelbert Scott, one of the principals in the tragedy, was a nephew of former Governor Bradley, by whom he was appointed as Lieutenant in Col. Colson's regiment. Capt. Goldson was also in the regiment at the time of the trouble between Colson and Scott at Anniston, Ala., last year, and, though a Scott sympathizer, left and came home in order to keep out of the difficulty.

GOLDEN'S STORY.

One story told about the battle is that Scott and Golden were in the act of going to the restaurant in the basement of the hotel when Colson came up to them. He said something to Scott; they used some pretty sharp language. Golden turned away from them, and was the first man shot.

"Scott was between Colson and me," said Capt. Golden, "and it was a bullet from Colson's pistol that struck me. Whether it was intentional or a stray shot I can not say. Colson could have no possible reason for desiring my death."

L. W. Demaree, one of the men killed, was assistant postmaster of Shelbyville and prominent in Republican politics.

WILD SCENE IN THE LOBBY.

The lobby of the hotel presented a wild scene when the shooting began.

The hundred-odd people in the lobby broke in all directions, out the doors, through the windows and back into the hotel.

COLSON'S PISTOL DID IT.

From the best information that can be got from the many witnesses who saw the different parts of the battle, it is generally believed that shots from Colson's pistol killed Scott, Demaree and Julian, and that it was a stray shot from his pistol that struck Golden.

ORIGIN OF THE TROUBLE.

The killing was the result of a feud between Colson and Scott, which grew up between them while they were in the volunteer army. Colson was Colonel of the Fourth Kentucky and Scott was a First Lieutenant.
They fell out, and Col. Colson sought to have Lieut. Scott examined by a board of officers and discharged for inefficiency. The members of the regiment took sides and those who favored Scott wore buttons bearing his photograph.

Immediately after the regiment was mustered out of service at Anniston, Ala., Colson and Scott met in a restaurant in that city. Hot words passed and Scott shot Colson, inflicting what was for a time a serious wound.

Scott was acquitted at his examining trial at Anniston, Colson failing to appear as a witness.

Scott was a son of Dr. Scott, formerly Superintendent of the Lexington Insane Asylum, and was a nephew of former Gov. Bradley. While the latter was making his race for governor against Hon. P. Wat Hardin, Scott acted as his private secretary.

During the Harrison's administration young Scott held a clerical position in the United States Surveyor's office in this city under Col. Dan Collier. Scott made numerous friends while here.

The second bill day brought another flood of proposed laws. Mr. T. J.
Nichell introduced one providing for the exemption from sale for taxes or debts pender for cattle to the value of $70.

Other bills were introduced providing as follows:

To prevent the sale of adulterated baking powders.

To place in the hands of prison commissioners the power of paroling convicts.

To permit the killing of rabbits at any time to prevent destruction of crops.

To require railroads to provide an entire separate coach for colored passengers.

To prohibit the employment of children under 14 years in factories and anywhere for wages during the school months.

To permit the killing of quail until
Feb. 1.

Providing that no trustee in a public school shall have a voice in the selection of any teacher who is related to such trustee.

Making twenty-two instead of twenty days a school month.

To permit the practice of osteopathy.

To prohibit bathing in a nude condition in a stream or pool in view of a cemetery, church, food or bridge.

A bill to amend the election law provides that the governor shall appoint two State Election Commissioners con-named designated by the two parties having polled the largest vote at the last preceding election for State officers or presidential election, one from each party. The State Board, in turn, would appoint two county commissioners from names designated by the two political parties recognized by their respective State Committees as being the regular organization of each party in said county, one from each party. The county commissioners are to appoint election officers for the various precincts, one judge for each party, and one sheriff and clerk, the latter two officers to be alternated by precincts. The modes of canvassing are to be similar to the precinct law.

Contests for all the State officers except that of Governor, Lieutenant Governor and members of the Legislature, to be brought in the Franklin circuit court, with right of appeal to the court of appeals. For district or county officers appeal lies in the circuit court having jurisdiction within that district. It provides for selection of paper for ballots and mode of printing same.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 15.—The legislative committees, drawn to hear the contests between Goebel and Taylor for the Governorship and Beckham and Marshall for the Lieutenant Governorship, met in the hall room of the Capital Hotel this morning.

The opening hour of the contest boards was taken up with the filing of certain papers by the Republican attorneys, renewing the motion of Taylor and Marshall that the committees vacate because of their alleged illegal drawing by the Senate and House Clerks, and responding to the notices of contest served on them by alleging that the charges made about the use of the military were of too vague a nature to be substantiated.

moned to Appear Before the Contest Committee.

County Clerk Woods together with Messrs. H. A. Haynes, C. E. Weldon, J. F. Conger and W. B. Yandell have been summoned to appear before the contesting committees at Frankfort tomorrow to testify in the contest for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor.
Mr. Woods was also directed to convey all the stubs of the ballot book used in the last election to Frankfort.
They will leave for the Capitol today and will probably be absent several days.

REV. CARTER RESIGNS

As Pastor of the Baptist Church and Rev.
Conway is Called.

Several weeks ago Rev. T. C. Carter, who has been pastor of the Baptist church at this place for ten years, notified the congregation that he would, at the meeting this month, tender his resignation. Accordingly there was no surprise when he did so at the regular church meeting Saturday. The congregation was reluctant to part with one who had served it so long and so efficiently, but Rev. Carter would not permit the use of his name in the deliberations incident to calling a pastor, and a call was sent to Rev. T. A. Conway, of Zion, Union county. While no answer has been received from him, it is generally believed that he will accept. He is said to be a fine preacher and a zealous, successful pastor. Rev. Carter has accepted a call from the Grand Rivers church and spent Tuesday and Wednesday acquainting himself with his new work. He has three churches besides his new charge, Good Hope, Livingston county, which he has served fourteen years; Rock Spring, Webster county, where he has been pastor thirteen years, and Rock Fork, Union county, where he preached ten years. Ten years ago he became pastor of the Marion church, and then the membership was comparatively small, the church several hundred dollars in debt. Now there is a membership of 130, the debt has all been liquidated and the church in a growing prosperous condition.

"READY MONEY"

Philanthropy and Finance.

That present demand for well drilled Osteopaths greatly exceeds the supply. Letters are received by the secretary almost daily asking that operators be sent out into the world.
These requests come from communities where Osteopathy has been known by its work. But every competent Osteopath is now pleasantly located and over run with work, while the total number of students now in the school would not if graduated, supply the demand for one State alone. This demand for Osteopaths will increase.
Every day cures are being accomplished at the infirmary, and these people gone and tell their friends about the new method. Thus the field is broadened and new communities where Osteopaths could step into a good practice are daily added to the list.
Young men and women who are about to choose a life work should investigate Osteopathy by all means before casting their lot. There is no profession in which youth and brains will find a more pleasant and profitable employment.

There is no avocation in life which places within the reach of the industrious young men and women of today as great opportunities as are offered in the science of Osteopathy.
Other trades and professions are full to overflowing; many are so badly overdone as to be unremunerative to even their most experienced and competent followers. Osteopathy is new.
Its absolute success in dealing with disease is a guarantee that the young men and women who equip themselves with a knowledge of this new philosophy will reap a rich reward in worldly goods, and what is greater still, will be able to bless mankind.
The world is full of disease and suffering which all other systems have failed to benefit. The practitioner who can reach these people and give them relief will find the public ready to give him a generous reception.

It seems the part of wisdom for young men and women to fully investigate Osteopathy. It will pay to consider this profession as a life work.
If you have not given the matter a thought before, and if you have no life work selected, it is a good time to make arrangements to enter the Southern School of Osteopathy.
Other schools of Osteopathy have determined to raise the tuition and it is part of wisdom for those who expect to study Osteopathy to enter the next class. If you are interested in the matter the management of this institution will be pleased to give you any information desired.

THE WHITT WILL.

Dr. Mott's Affidavit in the Matter.

EDITOR PRESS:—As it has been stated or talked quietly around in some quarters that my mother, the late Mrs. Sarah Whitt, was not of sound mind when she made and signed her last will, I desire the publication of the following certificate, made and sworn to by Dr. J. B. Mott, her family physician, and filed in the county clerk's office when the will was probated. Dr. Mott is well known in this section, and I presume that his testimony is sufficient to set at rest all such absurd statements.

Yours Truly,
Geo. L. Whitt.

AFFIDAVIT OF DR. MOTT.
STATE OF WASHINGTON,
County of King.

J. B. Mott being first duly sworn on oath says: That about four years ago and while he was a resident and practicing physician at the town of Fredonia, Caldwell county, State of Kentucky, he, at the request of Mrs. Sarah Whitt, and at her dictation, wrote the will of the said Sarah Whitt of Crittenden county, Kentucky, and thereupon read the same over to the said Sarah Whitt, who acquiesced in the same and signed the said will in the presence of this affiant and D. W. Rawlston as her last will and testament, and that this affiant and the said D. W. Rawlston then and there, in the presence of the said Sarah Whitt, and in the presence of each other, and at her request, witnessed the said will of the said Sarah Whitt. That at the time of the making of said will the said Sarah Whitt was of sound mind and discretion and the said will expressed her desires, and in making the same she acted freely and voluntarily without any persuasion or coercion of any nature whatever from any person whomsoever.

J. B. Mott, M. D.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this the 26 day of December 1899.

THE ROAD CASE.

Thinks the Road Law is Annuled.

Seeing an account of the road case before Judge Rochester in last week's issue, and hearing some of the facts in the case, and somewhat interested in the roads as a citizen of the county, I beg a space for a few remarks. It is nothing but right and just that every road overseer, road hand and in fact every taxpayer in the county should think about the matter before us. The county judge, attorney and magistrates met in October, condensed the road law, and had it published at the county's expense, which they say, 6 days of eight hours each shall constitute a road year. But now the jury says put the roads in good condition regardless of time or cost. At least this was practically the verdict in this case last week, of a fourth class road, which cost the county $78 and the neighborhood 18 days work. There being at present 295 overseers in the county, if each would do the same (and they have a perfect right according to the verdict) it would cost the county $22,890 a year, calculating on the lowest grade road. This is a sum far superior to any appropriation ever made or should be made by any county board.

This case not only annuls the late road law, but gives the overseers all the time their ambitious spirits may desire if it takes 60 days, which leaves the county finance in the overseer's hands and no one can hinder.

Let us work by taxation and reduce the expense.

"A stitch in time saves nine," but there seem to have been two stitches lost in this case, and eighteen had to be taken up. If this is the case many of the overseers are three and four stitches behind, which will cost the county some money to catch up.

The Italian Government has asked the United States to punish the persons guilty of lynching the five Italians in Louisiana last spring. Help... Nature Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION
COD LIVER OIL
WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA

will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

A DOCTOR'S DISCOVERY.

Wood Pulp for Poultices and Surgical Dressings.

Mr. Frederick T. Gordon, a hospital steward at the League Island navy yard, has been for some time conducting experiments on the use of wood pulp in surgery and he gives the results of his experiments in a recent number of the Medical Record. Wood pulp is obtained in its crude form from the manufacturers and comes in sheets of any size and thickness. It is cheap, easily obtained and possesses valuable properties. When macerated in water, it wells up and absorbs from four to five times its weight of liquid, retaining it for a long time. As the pulp becomes soft a poultice of any desired consistency can be made by varying the quantity of the water. By using hot water the resulting poultice will retain its heat and moisture much longer than a similar poultice made of bread or flaxseed. Of course, antiseptic drugs soluble in water may be dissolved in the water in which the pulp is to be soaked, as the pulp itself is unaffected by most drugs. When dry the pulp will absorb both oils and fats. This is particularly valuable, as it can be used as an emollient and antiseptic substitute for salves, etc., on lint as a surgical dressing. Wood pulp can be molded when moist, so that it can be used as a splint, owing to the fact that it dries very hard. When kept slightly wet with an antiseptic solution, the pulp remains soft and can be used as an absorbent dressing. Crude wood pulp can be sterilized by heating in an ordinary sterilizer. If the heat is increased so that the surface is charred, it will act as a deodorizing dressing. Poultices of wood pulp are far superior to flaxseed, and being perfectly stable do not deteriorate in any climate, and owing to its small compass a considerable supply can be carried. Should it become wet, it can be dried in an ordinary stove. It is an ideal material for the country practitioner, being always the same, insuring uniform results. A sheet four feet square costs only about 15 or 20 cents.

FIFTY YEARS OLD

Why let your neighbors know it? And why give them a chance to guess you are even five or ten years more? Better give them good reasons for guessing the other way. It is very easy; for nothing tells of age so quickly as gray hair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

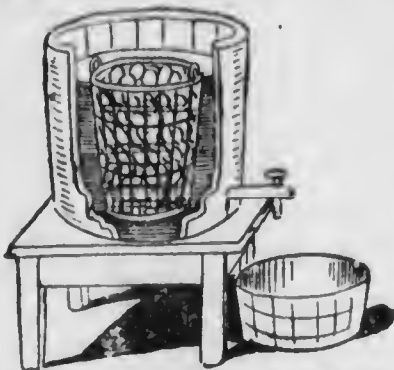

It is a youth-renewer. It hides the age under a luxuriant growth of hair the color of youth. It never fails to restore color to gray hair. It will stop the hair from coming out also. It feeds the hair bulbs. Thin hair becomes thick hair, and short hair becomes long hair. It cleanses the scalp; removes all dandruff, and prevents its formation. We have a book on the Hair which we will gladly send you. If you do not obtain all the benefits you expect from this Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

TREATMENT FOR SCAB.

How to Disinfect Seed Potatoes with out Going to Much Work and Needless Expense.

To make the solution, first get a good-sized wooden tub, tank or wide barrel. Dissolve two ounces of corrosive sublimate (bichloride of mercury) in two gallons of boiling water; then add water enough to make 15 gallons. If needed, make double this quantity. Stir until thoroughly dissolved. It is a good plan to have the tank, or whatever it is, stand upon a bench or other support high enough so you can put in a faucet for emptying the solution when done using into some other convenient receptacle. If you have a basket-maker living at no great distance from you (as I have) you can get him to make a plain, strong open basket of the shape as that shown in illustration, large enough to hold about a bushel of potatoes. Or if such a basket is not at hand or cannot be procured, then you can take a coarse gunny-sack and fill it with potatoes. Whatever receptacle you have, immerse it with the potatoes into the tank or tub, and leave it in about 90 minutes. Then lift the basket or sack out of the liquid, empty the potatoes out to dry, and fill with a new lot to go through the same performance. When the potatoes are dry, cut as wanted and plant. Do not let any of the treated tubers lie around, as they are liable to poison any animal that would get hold of and eat them.—Farm and Fireside.

ORCHARD COVER CROPS.

Their Value and Advantages Officially Recognized by the Agricultural Department.

The growing of green crops in an orchard should not be done with the view of scattering crops for use, but to benefit the trees as a covering. The agricultural department has given this matter its attention and pointed out the advantages in a special bulletin. A cover crop, to serve as a blanket, and protect the soil, may be secured with the use of mammoth clover, cow peas, buckwheat, rye, crimson clover or anything that will remain on the ground all winter. Cover crops, unlike those grown throughout the season, do not, as a rule, injure the trees by drying out the soil and even where the weather during the fall is normally dry, the injury is less than in summer, since plants evaporate less water from their leaves in the cooler weather and shorter days of fall than in the longer and hotter days of summer. Cover crops not only do not, as a rule, dry out the soil injuriously, but they also add directly to the moisture holding capacity of the soil by the humus formed in their decay, and they hold much of the snow until it melts and is absorbed by the soil. They are also rarely as injurious as crops grown throughout the entire season, and are often beneficial because their growth is made after the trees have stopped growing and are maturing their wood for winter. Trees make their greatest growth early in the season, and therefore require much less moisture the latter part of the season than earlier in the year. In fact, in some localities it is considered an advantage to cease cultivation by midsummer and grow some secondary crop which will check the growth of the trees and raise them to maturity before winter. It has also been found that wherever cultivation or irrigation has been kept up late in the season, and the ground in a moist condition, with the trees thrifty and growing, the frost did but little damage.

Fertilize the Orchard.

It is certain that any crop will exhaust the soil in time, whether of grain or fruit. On some farms may be seen orchards of apple trees over half a century old. Every year these trees have produced fruit, and in return have received nothing in the form of fertilizer. It is estimated that an ordinary apple crop removes from an acre of soil about 50 pounds of nitrogen, 40 pounds of phosphoric acid and 75 pounds of potash. When clover is grown in the orchard the land is benefited by having its proportion of nitrogen increased, but it will gain nothing in mineral matter. The land devoted to apples should receive fertilizer or manure every year, and when there is a heavy crop of apples in sight the fruit should be thinned out in the early stages of growth.—Rural World.

Size of the Farm Garden.

Unless there is a convenient market for the sale of vegetables the garden should be no larger than is necessary to afford full variety and an abundance for the family, as the keeping down of weeds and grass in the garden is a matter which may require attention just at a time when the farmer is busy with his spring planting, but every farmer should have a garden, even if but few kinds of vegetables are grown.

THE SANDWICH WOMAN.

Has Made Her Appearance on the Streets of New York.

The first woman I have seen acting as an advertising "sandwich," says W. E. Curtis in the Chicago Daily Record, now parades Sixth Avenue, Broadway and the cross streets that are devoted to shopping and carries upon her breast and back, reaching from her neck to her knees, illuminated boards that make known the merits of a new brand of five-cent cigars. She is a good-looking girl with a fresh complexion and blonde hair, evidently of foreign parentage and rather shabbily dressed. She appears to be entirely indifferent to the stares of surprise and the comments that are directed at the unusual spectacle and saunters slowly among the multitudes of shoppers, gazing into the show windows and often stopping to inspect their attractions. Hundreds of men earn a scanty living in this way and I suppose a good-looking girl should not be prevented from accepting such employment if she cannot find something more suitable to her sex.

The Press.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

R. C. WALKER, Publisher.

ONE YEAR ONE DOLLAR

Let us hear the evidence before we pass judgment.

Marion has a city council, has had the smallpox and a sand-bagger. That ought to entitle us to get in class four of the Commonwealth's cities.

Politics rage hot, the war-god has red paint on his nose, but we have something to be grateful for anyhow—smallpox sticks to its "light form."

And our county clerk must go to Frankfort. When the fighting cocks see that bland smile that always overspreads his benevolent face they'll be ashamed of themselves.

If the press censors of the Philippines and African would open shop in Frankfort, they would confer a boon upon suffering humanity as well as give truth some show.

Roaring Bill Sweeney has issued an address to the Democracy of the State wanting the contest stopped. We don't blame any member of those "honest election leaguers" for wanting to pull down the blinds.

The exposing of Whallen is worth all the expense incurred so far. If we would purify politics such men must be eliminated, and if there be others, no matter in whose camp they lurk, let them be shown up.

The situation must be improving at the state capitol, the Democratic and Republican lawyers held a friendly conference the other day. By reading the Post and Dispatch we had concluded that the only friendly people there were out at the Feeble Minded Institute, or sleeping under the shadow of Daniel Boone's tomb.

The pupils of the Hopkinsville public high school are undertaking a practical course of lessons in civil government, which consists in nothing less than an attempt to govern themselves by rules or ordinances of their own making enforced by officers of their own choice.

Under this regime it may be safely asserted that the birch will grow unhereft of any twig; there will be no "empty chairs" on the peachtree limbs and corporal punishment will be speedily assigned to the realms of the "has beens."

In the pursuit of his avocation as a lawyer, and a successful one too, Ollie James went down to Paducah the other day to attend to some business with which he had been entrusted, and his presence in the metropolis of the Purchase called forth two lively editorials in as many of the leading journals, announcing that Ollie's congressional boom had reached that city and commenting thereon. Without considering the comments or tone of the papers, we are gratified that the presence of our distinguished fellow townsman is sufficient to set the tongues of congressman makers agog, and indicates that he has a commanding position in congressional politics.

The New York Independent is about the only paper in the country that makes it a point to keep posted on the statistics of church membership, and annually it gives a summary of its figures, and as the condition of the church is a pretty safe index to the forward or backward movement of civilization, these figures, though not altogether reliable, are interesting. In 1899 there were 27,710,004 church members in the country, and 187,703 churches, with 153,901 preachers. The increase in membership during the year was but 1 per cent, showing that the assertions of many ministers that this is a time of spiritual dirth is not without some foundation. While the membership increased only 1 per cent, the number of ministers increased 3 per cent, only 421 churches were added. According to these tables the Congregationalists are gaining fastest, while the Unitarians are not gaining at all, and the Universalists are said to have fallen off over 3 per cent. The Christian Scientists already claim a membership of 80,000, the Spiritualists are said to have a membership of 45,000, and the Theosophists 3 000. While the increase in membership of the church did not, last year, keep pace with the increase of population, there was a growth and, though at times the march is slow, yet the Christian faith, the heaven of our glorious civilization, is not declining.

The law-makers, when they framed and passed an election law after the adoption of the new constitution, and the governor—then John Young Brown—when he signed the bill, were aware of the fact that conditions might arise out of which would spring a contest for the office of Governor and Lieutenant Governor. To meet such a contingency provisions were made for hearing all contending parties and settling the contest. These provisions are practically the same today as they were when the bill passed by the "long parliament" became the law of the commonwealth; the only change wrought by what is known as the Goebel election law in a contest of this kind was the taking of the decision from the committee chosen to hear the contest and vesting it in the hands of the 138 men constituting both branches of the legislature. As was foreseen a contest has arisen, and the only thing to do is to settle the contest according to the law, the effective provisions of which were adopted long before either the present contestant and contestee were thought of as candidates for governor. Why an investigation of the claims and counter claims of the two men contending for the highest office in the gift of the people, according to law and in a lawful manner, should arouse threats of bloodshed and revolution, we are unable to comprehend, especially as they come from Kentuckians, and Kentuckians have always been noted for their disposition to get at the facts in the case before awarding the prize. All sides, if we are true to the traditions of our fathers, should court the fullest investigation. Charges of frauds of various kinds are made by both parties, usurpation of power is alleged; every patriot in every party should cast aside his partisanship, which surrounds and envelops us all to a greater or less extent, for the nonce, and not only court, but demand an investigation of these charges. We owe this to the public weal, for the swiftest and most effective remedy for such public wrongs, if they exist, is publicity. If Mr. Goebel be the bad man his enemies write him down, let his tricks be exposed. If Mr. Taylor comes by the office he holds unfairly, if his title thereto be not good, let it be made known to the public in unmistakable light. We may enact election laws till the crack of doom, but the wisest hands that may pen laws until that catastrophe engulfs us all, can not as effectively rid the country of the election debauchee as complete exposure will. Let us have the pertinent facts in the case and a fair decision.

If Mr. Goebel is to be made governor solely because his party is in the majority, let us go back to the days and methods of Robin Hood.

If Mr. Taylor is to stay in merely because he is in, let the fellow who grabs and runs with another's goods keep them because he has them.

"Them's our sentiments," if you don't like them, ring off.

In the mean time let us keep on our shirts and abide by the action of constituted authority, feeling secure in the fact.

"Truth, though crushed to earth, will rise again."

Mayfield, Ky., Jan. 12.—Ellie Graham, a farmer living fifteen miles north of this city, was arrested here last night for alleged murder. The charge against him is poisoning his wife. Mr. John L. Dismukes, jr., left for Louisville on the midnight train with the stomach to be analyzed by chemists.

ANOTHER MAIL.

Petition Asking For Double Service on the I. C.

A petition is being circulated here and at other towns on the Ohio Valley Branch of the I. C., asking the department at Washington for mail service on both passenger trains. Under the present arrangements the towns on the O. V. have but one mail each way per day, while there are two regular passenger trains. It is surprising that an effort has not been made before this to get the double service; had the people along the line been as wide awake and as quick to "catch on" and appreciate all the good points of business as are the people north of the Ohio river, we would have had this service long ago. The goods towns, populous country and thriving business of the territory adjacent to the road, as well as the convenience of the people along the star routes that are supplied by this road will certainly justify the department in giving us this service, and the promptness required in business in these days really demands increased mail facilities and double service over the O. V. and would be but justice to the people and their large and varied business interests.

We understand that Senator Deboe will lend his influence to the securing of these advantages, and we assure him that the business men will appreciate his efforts in this direction, and doubtless our congressmen, were he appraised of the situation, would also assist in the matter.

In Memory.

Died at her home near Caldwell Springs church, Jan. 3, 1900, Mrs.
J. H. Beavers in the 27th year of her age. Sister Beavers was a daughter of the well known and highly appreciated Baptist preacher, W. R. Gibbs.
Ollie professed faith in Christ at the age 12 or 13 years, and joined the Baptist church at Crooked Creek, afterwards took her membership to Caldwell Springs church, in whose membership she died. She lived a devout, consistent christian life, and hence died in triumph of faith, and has gone home to reap her reward.

Ollie was married to J. H. Beavers three years ago, and to this happy union has been born two bright little children, who have been left to the care of the devoted husband and father, and to friends, and especially to the care of God who gave them.

The funeral sermon was preached by T. C. Carter, at Caldwell Springs from Job 13:10: "Man giveth up the ghost, and where is he?" in the presence of a large congregation of relatives and friends, who deeply mourn her loss.

To know sister Beavers was to love and admire her for her real merit.

To the bereaved family and friends we extend our sympathy and prayers, and rejoice that you weep not as those who have no hope, "Ollie is gone; not lost but flown; not dead, but asleep in Jesus."

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep from whence none ever wake to weep."

SCALE INSECTS.

Prof. Johnston, Maryland's State Entomologist, Writes Concerning Them.

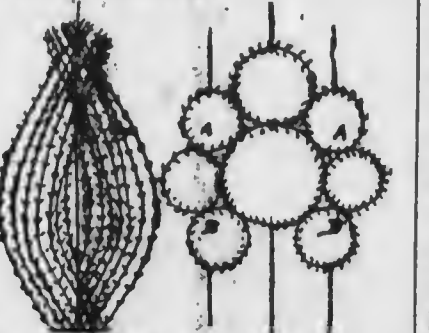

There is no group of insects of greater importance to horticulture today than that family which includes the creatures popularly known as scale insects, bark lice or scale insects. They are to the horticulturist in many localities what the locust is to the agriculturist in the Central West. There is scarcely a shrub or tree that is not subject to their attacks, and in many places extensive orchards have been ruined by them. The minute size of the creatures, the difficulty of destroying them, and their wonderful reproductive powers all combine to make them the most formidable of the pests of our orchards. Notwithstanding the great importance of these insects very little attention was given them until after the discovery of the San Jose scale in the East in 1893. It is not an uncommon occurrence to find oranges, lemons, pears, apples and other fruits in our local markets covered with scale insects.

The mere presence of these pests upon the fruit is ample evidence that the tree from which it came was attacked by the same insidious creatures, sapping its life and vigor, thus depriving the fruit of the elements so requisite for its development and perfection. Fruits of whatever kind from badly infested trees are always inferior in quality, stunted in growth and as a general rule unfit for the market. Yet they are soaped, rubbed and polished by the sturdy old farmer, who honestly thinks he is restoring what insects and disease have destroyed, and takes them to market as the "best in the world." It is hard to tell who has committed the greater sin, the humble honest farmer, who so skillfully plights his fruits with gold, or the straightforward, upright silver-tongued tree agent who covers up insects and disease with the same precious metal when he sold his stock.

At the present time the nurserymen and the fruit growers are confronted by a condition of affairs far more serious than anything that has yet arisen in the development and extension of the horticultural interests of the United States and all on account of that notorious little creature the San Jose scale.

And I must confess that a great deal of nonsense has been written and published about it. While the San Jose scale is, without doubt, the most pernicious orchard pest established on American soil it need not ruin our nursery interests and run fruit growers out of business. Less talk, fewer sensational articles and more work on the part of nurserymen and fruit growers and the San Jose scale can be controlled in any locality. By putting in to effect a carefully formulated law and insisting upon its execution we no longer fear the San Jose scale in Maryland. By locating all the infested orchards, destroying all the badly infested trees, and treating all suspicious ones with hydrocyanic acid gas, while oil soap or kerosene diluted with water from 30 to 50 per cent. we have reduced the scale in this State to the minimum. We inspect at first once a season all suspicious orchards, and often if the interests warrant it. By this system we know at all times the exact condition prevailing in our orchards, and can follow up accordingly any section that needs immediate attention.—Prof. W. G. Johnston, State Entomologist of Maryland.

Supports for Climbing Vines.
Figs. 1 and 2 shows designs for two frames or supports for sweet peas, or any kind of vine. Such frames are suitable for the balloon vine, and also the cypress, and are made of willow wands or limbs, choosing those of good shape. The willow is especially adapted as it is extremely flexible and can be made to assume any shape required. A stout pole or rod forms the necessary support for No. 1. Plant the willows firmly in a circular form a foot or more from the base of support, spacing evenly; then confine them at the top by a stout cord, or a ring of wire may be slipped over them so as to keep the wands in place. Such a frame will be found quite ornamental, and will support a heavy load of vines. A substantial, and will stand the test of winds and storm, as found by actual experience.

FRAMES FOR VINES.

No. 2 shows another support for the sweet pea or other climbing plants. Three strong rods are firmly planted in the ground and circles formed of willow wands or limbs are braced together, and afterward arranged as shown in design. Horizontal pieces of wood may be used to strengthen it if thought necessary, and should be placed at places marked A, A, and B, B. This design, if well made, will be found durable and very ornamental. These frames can occupy the centre of a circular flower bed, the outer edge being planted with geraniums. This arrangement is very effective.

Tuberculosis in Man and Cattle.
In an elaborate paper read before the Albany County Medical Society, Dr. Edward Moore characterizes as very weak and inconclusive all the evidence that has been presented to show that tuberculosis can be communicated in any possible way from man to cattle or vice versa. If the germ was originally identical, he believes that it has been so modified in each case that it can live only in man, or only in cattle, as the case may be, and must die harmlessly when transferred from one to the other. Everybody must earnestly hope that this view will ultimately prevail. If it does, Dr. Moore will rank as the pioneer in correcting a widespread and most injurious error.

ORIENTAL CANOES.

Curious Craft With Outriggers Still Used for Inter-Island Communication.

There is only one race of primitive men which makes its entrance upon the page of history by way of the sea. Other early races creep over mountain passes and evade the great water courses by flanking the distant mountains. They fear the great sea. It takes ages before they gain the courage to coast from cape to cape, and always in sight of land. The Polynesian of the South Sea bursts into hazard of deep-water voyaging. In all the families of his race save one, his story begins with the daring of the Pacific, the greatest ocean of all.

Call the roll of these families and see whence they came and how. Hawaii? By canoe from Kahiki, which may be Tahiti, certainly is no nearer than the Marquesas.

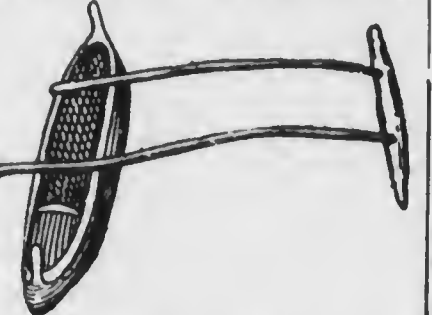

HAWAIIAN CANOE.

The Marquesas? From Hawaii, far across the Western sea. Tahiti? From Hawaii in the West. Rarotonga? From Awaki, a land in the West and down to the leeward. The Maori of New Zealand? From Hawaii.

All of these families tell of the tempestuous voyages of their ancestors from this mysterious land, of which all retain the name. It was the home of the race in the beginning. It was at that home that they learned to become sailors and ocean adventurers. The only family of the Polynesian race which does not begin in a legend of a dangerous trip across the waters is the Samoan. They believe that the earth was made at their archipelago, that they are themselves the first race of human beings. Ethnologists are agreed on one point: they acknowledge that even if Samoa is not the nest of the Polynesian race, still its largest island, Savaii, is carried in all these traditions as at least the place of the final dispersion of these colonies.

This gives us the shortest and the most direct line in the evolution of naval construction. By it we can judge how primitive man first essayed to build ships, a primitive man who was not afraid of the water. Compared with the brown race of the South Sea, the Polynesian of remote antiquity and the Viking rovers of more recent ages are nothing but loughshoremen. We are able to see in the present day what the primitive savages did in remote ages when they ventured on the sea. The Polynesian vessel is a type which has been reserved with almost absolute uniformity in all the wandering families of that race. It is the type of what the floating log became when human ingenuity was exerted to fit it for emergencies which arose early in savagery.

As Samoa is acknowledged to be the dispersal centre of the Polynesian race, the Samoan type of vessel may not improperly be assumed as containing all the elements of naval architecture as known to the race at the time of the great dispersal, and therefore the most simple development of the early type of vessel. There is just time to catch the Samoan type before it vanishes. Already the boat cooled after Caucasian craft from end to end of the archipelago. Fifteen years ago there were many sailing canoes in Samoa; this year there is but one, and it is drawn up on a remote beach and left to fall into decay, never again to be used. The same change will continue to work; it will not be long before this primitive type of vessel will be but a museum curiosity.—Forest and Stream.

JOHN S. F. WEAVER.
The native Filipino does not know the vice of blasphemy; he is not ordinarily obscene in his speech; he is not quarrelsome; he is respectful to those who display authority; is docile and obedient, although he is weak and remliss in the performance of his duties; he bears his punishment and believes it to be just when he is guilty of a fault, but he becomes irritated if personally insulted, and he awaits with rancor and in cold blood the moment to avenge outrages done to his person or his family.

He likes very much to pass hours in idleness or in not very animated conversation with his companions and friends. He is fond of feasts and pilgrimages, of play and betting, and easily spends in a day what has cost him months and even years to acquire. In his dealings with the European, when he attempts any business whatever, he is cunning and crafty and tries to come out the gainer, to which end he will use deceit, and even puerile artifices. He is fond of ostentation, pomp, noise, and spectacular display. The senses exercise a greater influence upon him than is usual in other races, and from this comes proceeds the infinite vanity that makes many array themselves in elegant clothes, jewels, decorations, etc. He loves sensual pleasures, but not to the point, as some have alleged, of disregarding the laws of blood, not to the extreme of falling into abominations.

Although he appears silent and submissive, he is much given to quiet unassuming and to criticizing the acts of his superiors, especially those of the European, but this is done more in the way of curious and inquiring conversation than true criticism. He possesses normal intelligence, a good memory, and an aptitude for mechanics. He is a good workman when habit, necessity, or passion influence him, and for hours and hours can perform rough and most laborious work, as is demonstrated by those employed in rowing in the cultivation of sugar, or in the work of day laborers. Lacking incentive, however, he inclines to idleness, in which he sees nothing worthy of censure.

Old People Made Young.

J. C. Sherman, the veteran editor of the Vermontville (Mich.) Echo, has discovered the remarkable secret of keeping old people young. For years he has avoided Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Indigestion, Heart Trouble, Constipation and Rheumatism by using Electric Bitters, and he writes: "I can't be praised too highly. It gently stimulates the kidneys, tones the stomach, aids digestion, and gives a splendid appetite. It has worked wonders for my wife and me. It's a marvellous remedy for old people's complaints." Only 50c at Orme's drugstore.

As ugly as some women are it is a wonder that they spend so much money for clothes.

"One Minute Cough Cure is the best remedy I ever used for coughs and colds. It is unequalled for whooping cough. Children all like it," writes H. N. Williams, Gentryville, Ind. Never fails. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Cures coughs, colds, hoarseness, croup, pneumonia, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. It's early use prevents consumption.—J. H. Orme.

We have noticed that a doctor never looks at a horse.

Mr. J. Sheer, Sedalia, Mo., saved his child's life by One Minute Cough Cures. Doctors had given her up to die with croup. It's an infallible cure for coughs, colds, grippe, pneumonia, bronchitis and throat and lung troubles. Relieves at once.—J. H. Orme.

Everytime a man gets mad he makes a fool of himself.

Miss Annie E. Gunning, Tre. Mich., says "I suffered a long time from dyspepsia; lost flesh and became very weak. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure completely cured me." It digests what you eat and cures all forms of stomach trouble. It never fails to give immediate relief.—James H. Orme.

Half the people nowadays seem to be looking for a chance to sign something.

Threatened With Consumption.

C. Unger, 212 Maple St., Champaign, Ill., writes: "I was troubled with a hacking cough for and thought I had the consumption. I tried a great many remedies and was under the care of physicians for several months. I used one bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar and it cured me and I have not been troubled since.—B. F. Haynes

COMPROMISED

Is a Big Law Suit That Was Filed Last Week.

A New Corporation to Operate A Spar Mines

Mr. J. M. Waggoner has filed suit in the circuit court against E. E. Squier. The petition alleges that the two formed a copartnership for prospecting for and mining spar, zinc, lead, copper, etc., in this State, under the firm name and style of "E. E. Squier & Co." That under and by the terms of partnership each was to be at one half the expense, and to share equally the profits and losses. The plaintiff was to do and attend to the prospecting and mining and the defendant was to attend to the office work. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant has violated and broken the terms and conditions of contract, he ought to recover $6,000 of the defendant, and that interests of the firms demands a receiver, and the plaintiff prays judgment for a dissolution of said partnership, and for an accounting and settlement of same; and for his debt and interest aforesaid and for a division of the remainder of said property, or for sale of same, as may best appear to the court, after first paying in full plaintiff's debt and cost of this action, and then a division of the remainder of the proceeds, and for an order of general attachment against the property of the defendant, and for a receiver herein and all proper and equitable relief.

Since the above was put in type a compromise of the matter was effected and Mr. Waggoner retires from the firm. Messrs C. S. Nunn, J. W. Blue, P. S. Maxwell and Harry A. Haynes take Waggoner's interest. The business will be capitalized at $20,000 and incorporated as the Spar Company. One half of the capital will be paid in at the organization.

Will Begin at the M. E. Church, Feb. 4.

A revival meeting will be held at the M. E. church in front of the college, commencing Feb 4th. Dr. W. B. Collins, of Louisville, will be present and do the preaching. He will preach a series of interesting sermons; everything possible will be done for the salvation of people. All are cordially invited to attend these meetings. G. M. Burnett, Pastor.

Social Re-Union

The young people of the upper grades of the school met in a social re-union at the school hall on Friday evening last.

After marching in couples through the halls the young people were entertained by a pleasant program. Prof. Evans read "Mr. Dooley's" opinion of Dewey and his idea of Queen Victoria's Jubilee. Misses Rosa Schwab and Carrie Moore recited.

The principal feature of the evening was a debate between four of the ablest students in the boy's congress. The question for discussion was: Resolved, that the standing army be increased to one hundred thousand men. Messrs. Charles Moore and Ed Chittenden composed the affirmative side, while Messrs. W. J. McChesney and Hickman Walker were on the negative. The young men made excellent speeches and it was hard to tell which side put forth the best argument.

Refreshments were served at 9:30 and after a beautiful recitation by Miss Melville Glenn, the young people dispersed.

The "re-union" is a special and original feature of the school, and is always greatly enjoyed by the young people.

Mrs. Ingram, the music teacher, will furnish music at the M. E. church during the revival in February.

BOLLENDAYMEN

Knock Down and Rob a Man on the Streets.

Mr. G. E. Boston, the groceryman, was knocked down and robbed of $109 in cash and his watch Thursday night on the corner of Depot and Walker streets, about thirty steps from his home.

He closed up his store about the usual time, between eight and nine o'clock, and started for his home. Just before he got to the corner, he observed two men coming toward him and from the depot; just as he turned to cross the street to his house, the men came up and before Mr. Boston suspected any attempt to attack him he was dealt a severe blow on the temple and felled to the ground. It was some moments before he regained consciousness, and when he did found, his pocket book and watch gone. His temple and throat were both badly bruised, showing that he had been choked after falling.

He raised the alarm at once but probably five or ten minutes had elapsed from the time he was knocked down until he received, and the highwaymen had escaped.

He had not noticed the two men closely, but thinks they were negroes, one was a large man and the other small.

Two negroes were arrested but the evidence was not sufficient to hold them. A day or two ago some boys found the watch on a lot in the rear of the Bigham business houses.

Obituary.

Catherine J. Phillips, or "Aunt Kittie Phillips," as she has been generally called of late years, was born April 21st, 1821. She was a daughter of William and Polly Hill. There were twelve of the children and all grew to manhood and womanhood. All are now gone but Uncle Billie Hill, of Hillsdale. They were all christians. Aunt Kittie professed religion and joined the Methodist church when she was eighteen years old. She was married to D. B. Phillips, January 19, 1843; six children were born to them, all of whom are living except Edgar, who died a prisoner in the Civil war, and Brown who died about two years ago. The surviving children are John M. and Bascom; Sallie, wife of Fillmore Wolford, and Clara, widow of John Nunn. All are men and women of most christian character, and an honor to the communities in which they live. We know of no better way of judging a woman than by the character of the children she raises, and in their very lives they "arise up and call her blessed." She was a devoted mother to her children, and a kind friend to all. Her children have heard her pray earnestly for their salvation and rejoice and praise God that her prayers were answered.

She was a patient sufferer for several years previous to her death. The writer saw her a few days before she died, and she was peacefully and patiently awaiting the end. It seemed that the frail body but scarce concealed a spirit from the better world. She remained in this perfect peace till the Lord released her from this suffering body and bade her come up higher. She died September 18, 1899.

A NEW SWINDLE.

Or Rather, a New Form of an Old One.

The New York postoffice officials have detected a new form of "green goods" swindling, and have in custody James McAndrews, who says that he lives at Bayonne, N. J. McAndrews received his letters at the Jersey City Postoffice, where he was arrested, and was arraigned before United States Commissioner Lindsay Howe and held in $2,500 bail. He deposited the cash and was released. Inspector Snow, who made the arrest, stated that McAndrews had posed as a dealer in jewelry, and had frequented the South and West thousands of his clericals and done a large business. The first circular, which is headed in bold type, "Harris of Montgomery," urges the recipients to be wide awake, and if they want a few barrels of money not to hesitate to accept the offer at once. This innocent looking circular begins with this paragraph: "We have a lot of imitation jewelry which you can dispose of very easily. The price, $1, is in each corner of the long green printed card each piece is put upon. These goods are gotten up so well that no one except an expert can tell the difference between them and the genuine. They are a perfect imitation of the real goods. After a while we will have some for sale, the selling price printed, $2, $5 and $10. "We will send you 1,000 for $4 cash with order. We will send 5,000 for $150 cash with order. We will send 12,000 for $250 cash with order. We will send 25,000 for $500 cash with order. "The address given is No. 34 Mercer street, There is no such number in Mercer street, and McAndrews rented a postoffice box, at which he received his mail.

The second circular is carefully worded, but hints at the "green goods" feature of the transaction. This invitation naturally would hook the victim, as it meant a piece of jewelry, a cheap brass pin on a white card, with "Price $1" printed on a corner of the card. To this McAndrews planned a crisp new $1 Treasury note and a circular that directly touched on the "green goods." It is cunningly prepared, and refers to the new Treasury bill as "a fine imitation of the real article." It is this circular which opens the negotiation for the alleged "green goods," and when the victim sends a large sum of money he gets in return, nothing or a case of the worthless jewelry, instead of a box of sawdust.

A Novel Business.

Edgar A. Watson ("Wolf" Watson), of Omaha, Neb., draws a salary from the Nebraska Live Stock Association to pay him for putting in his entire time killing wolves. He has reduced the wolf census of the State so that he can kill but one a year. When he began he killed 500 a year. Watson is a famous hunter, who shot his first wolf with Buffalo Bill, on a contract to supply the Union Pacific Railroad builders with meat, was killed in a wolf chase.

The son is now fifty-five, as straight as an Indian and a famous rider. He goes from point to point where camp is made of wolves' denigrations, killing a superb horse and accompanied by six of his fine staghounds. Dogs and horses run down the wolves in the open prairie. Then the training shows. A wolf could kill one of Watson's dogs, but the six show team work, and so divide the animal's attention that they are seldom injured. Upon his hunting time Watson carries only a revolver, and seldom needs to use even that. When he needs it, he needs it badly, for though a wolf will never attack a man so long as he might run, a hard-pressed wolf sometimes sell his life dearly.

Once a big gray wolf jumped at Watson, chasing the flank of his horse and the other's right leg and hand. Watson reached over with his left hand, drew his pistol, and fired four shots at the wolf, but didn't harm the brute much, as his horse danced about so as to spell his aim. Watson had but one shot left. He put his pistol in the wolf's mouth, and at the risk of blowing off his own fingers, fired. That shot finished the animal after which the bleeding man rode home with ten weary miles to travel to the nearest town. But weak as they were from loss of blood, they took the wolf with them.

New Swindling Scheme.

A street beggar, with a new scheme, held the sidewalk in "Thirty-fourth street, within 100 yards of Henry Clews's residence in New York the other day. He seemed to be doing a thriving business, as he had a group about him. Since he sat on the flagging and could not be seen over the heads of his watchers, the cause of the gathering could not be understood without a little investigation. This fact drew many a passer toward him. The first thing discovered was an unkempt little old man, whose expression hinted that he was a bit weak of intellect, or to put it in the words of one older, that he "had rats in his garret." His business instincts were sound, however. Last first before him was a placard stating that he fell asleep in Madison Square, and that his pocket-book containing $30 was stolen.

Evidently he had received a portion of it for having out on the placard were a few pennies, with an occasional nickel and dime. With chalk the beggar kept what purported to be a rocking of his gait. A penny dropped at his feet, and was quickly added to his army, with suitable change in his fingers. But a moment later a prosperous-looking man pushed into the group far enough to look over the old man and his lay-out, and before turning away tossed him a quarter. At sight of the coin greed stood out of the old man's every feature, and he pocketed it, mumbling and rearranging his rags of baser stuff. Two of the noddies were quick to catch the significance of the incident.

"Hey, Quip!" cried one, "ring up!" The beggar understood the laud, but made no change in his chalked total. Then the other ragamuffin gave vent to a judicial opinion.

"He go to sleep in d'park!" he exclaimed. "Well! I guess n't!"

Twitterly (to Snitterly, reading novel)—"What's the meaning of the hero?" Snitterly—"I don't know his final fate, but, on page two-hundred-and-five, it looks as if the heroine had him tied. At any rate, the author states that 'at her glance he stood rooted to the spot.'"

GAMBLERS WHO HAVE LOST.

Effect of a Run of Bad Luck on the Temper.

"I have seen some curious effects of continuous gambling in my time," said an old New York sport, "but nothing to equal the affair I witnessed last Sunday morning. No one but a man who has gambled a good bit and has experienced the same sensations as those which led my friend to such violence as I will describe, will quite understand the frame of mind that he was in, but the old sport will understand it every time, because he's been there himself.

"Of course, you can't understand it, but if you was a gambler like P. T., you'd see it quick enough. Would you like to hear a story about the effect of a winning streak on beef stew? Yes? Well, you know one of the gamiest old gamblers you ever heard of is Dehnish Thompson, the actor. He's a horn gambler and he's at it when his pocket's lined same as when it isn't. Den and a friend, whom we'll call Jack, lost a lot of money in Chicago a few years ago and for two days they were broke. It was hard scratching for a place to sleep and as for eating, well, they did not manage to get any more than enough to keep alive on. One night they went to Buck B.—a gambling house to see if Den could land a friend and stake them. They hadn't had a bite to eat all day and were pretty hungry. Buck keeps a cafe on the ground floor of his place and the first thing that struck Den and Jack when they went in, was the odor of nice fresh beef stew.

"Gosh, ain't that great!" says Den. "Food for the gods, Jack."

"Never smelt anything like it before," says Jack. "Terrapin and champagne for the food, Den, but beef stew for you and me."

"They stood there just sniffin' the aroma of beef stew, making eyes at each other and looking the silence every few minutes to say something about that beef stew. Pretty soon Den spots a friend and manages to borrow a ten spot.

"Come," he says, "we'll make or break on it."

"Hold—," says Jack, sniffin' at the beef stew.

"No shrewd," says Den, and he and Jack went upstairs. The details aren't interesting, so I'll only say that when Den quit he had $800 in his pocket, he and Jack came downstairs together and the first thing that struck them was that odor of beef stew.

"Phew!" says Jack, "what is that smell?"

"Perfectly disgusting," says Den. "I should think Buck would be careful about the way he scents up the place."

"I never smelt anything like it," says Jack, "let's leave the place at once," and those two old hypocrites went out arm in arm and made a bee line for a restaurant where they had a meal that reduced the roll to $300.

"I've got one more if you'd like to hear it. Two friends of mine, once were broke and pretty hungry. One was an indefatigable gambler, the other a man who thought of his stomach before anything else in the world. They stood in front of a Sixth avenue beanery looking, hungrily at a pot of pork and beans from which a waiter was taking some for a customer. They hadn't a cent between them, but pretty soon a friend of my game friend came along and passed out a two dollar bill on request.

"Thank heavens, we can have some of those beans now," said the hungry one.

"We can, eh?" said the other. "Well wait a while and we'll see."

"My friend made a bee line for a gambling house, followed by the hungry one, who pleaded with him eloquently to get something to eat first. He was inflexible however, and a few minutes later was seated in front of a layout with two dollars worth of checks before him. He won a little and then he lost a little, and every two minutes the hungry one would whisper to him to quit and get some beans. He drew fascinating pictures of that smoking bean pot they had been looking at, but the other was game to the core. He finally had about twenty dollars in front of him, and then began to plunge. The hungry one gasped for breath and finally implored him to give him a quarter check to put aside for beans in case they went broke.

"Not a cent," said the other, "and if you don't shut up I'll kick you out of the place."

"The threat was useless for the other was too far gone in hunger to fear violence. He kept nagging and nagging, at the player, and finally got up and threw him bodily across the room. But the hungry one crept back and his first remark was about beans. With an exclamation of rage the gambler jumped up, cashed in $300 worth of checks, grabbed his friend by the coat collar, dragged him down two flights of stairs to the street and fairly hurled him through the swinging doors of the beanery.

"Give this blankety-blanked idiot $300 worth of beans," he roared, "and make him eat every one of them."

BRUTALITY.

Shocking Stories Told About British Soldiers.

Ugly charges are made against British soldiers at Elandslaagte by a correspondent of the leading Amsterdam paper, the Algemeen Handelsblad, who visited the Boer prisoners aboard the guardship Penelope, in Simon's Bay. It is alleged that the prisoners and the wounded were robbed of everything valuable, even wedding rings, and that in one case a Boer's finger was cut off to get a ring. The correspondent says: "Never have I thought Englishmen to be such brutes. Imagine about 50 men behind a kopje when 300 Lancers attacked them. The Boers had to surrender to such overwhelming numbers, and threw down their weapons in token of submission. But the Captain of the Lancers shouted, 'Kill the —', whereupon a tremendous massacre ensued. Souseenthaler, the only prisoner among them, was spared because he had remained flat on the ground.

"Remarkable corroboration of this charge is furnished by a letter written by Private Dolan, of the Fifth Lancers, about obviously the same incident at Elandslaagte. He describes how the Lancers charged a kopje, adding: 'As soon as they saw the lances they threw up their rifles and ammunition and cried 'friends.' But it was no go, for they fired on the Red Cross, and we had no mercy for them.'"
